LITTLE SCRATCH KILLS A. A. WILCOX

Reno Evening Gazette, Feb. 22, 1907

From a mere scratch on the back of his right hand, Andrew A. Wilcox, a resident of Carson, developed blood poisoning, which resulted in his death last night.

The deceased was 76 years of age. He was a native of Vermont. At the time of the Civil war he was in Michigan. He enlisted in the army, but was mustered out because of ill-health and never went to the front, where his heart was. His three brothers were stronger, and all fought through the entire war.

Less than a year ago, the wife of the deceased passed away, and since that time he has wanted to die. He has mourned constantly over the loss of his life-companion, and has rapidly grown feeble under the grief.

Two sons, Francis and Luman, who are now in Merced county, Cal.; a daughter, Mrs. Riehl, of Carson; three brothers, John Wilcox, now in Michigan; George and Z. T. Wilcox of Carson City and a sister, Mrs. Winchester, who lives in Vermont are left to mourn his death.
