MEMORANDUM

To: Board of Supervisors

From: Jennifer Pruitt, Principal Planner

Date: August 16, 2012

Subject: 2012 Carson City Historic Preservation Award

The Historic Resources Commission (HRC) is pleased to announce that one individual has been named as the recipient of the 2012 Carson City Historic Preservation Award for Outstanding Achievement in Historic Preservation. The award program recognizes persons, organizations, objects and projects that have achieved distinction in the field of historic preservation in Carson City. The program also provides the Historic Resources Commission and the Board of Supervisors, the opportunity to recognize persons, organizations, objects and projects that have achieved distinction in the field of historic preservation during National Historic Preservation Month.

This year's recipient exemplifies the spirit, motivation, and determination necessary to preserve our state's heritage for future generations. In honor of Historic Preservation Month, the following recipient has been selected by the Historic Resources Commission:

- Arthur A. Hannafin, Architect has been selected as the sole recipient of the 2012 Carson City Historic Preservation Award. He has been actively involved in the practice of architecture and historic preservation for decades in Carson City and for his efforts he is to be honored.

The annual Carson City Historic Preservation Awards encourage exemplary historic preservation efforts within Carson City by recognizing and rewarding actions and accomplishments that strengthen, broaden and advance the appreciation, understanding and involvement in Carson City's historic preservation mission.

BACKGROUND:

Since moving to Carson City from Philadelphia in 1973, Art has been actively engaged in a diverse and expansive practice of architecture, planning and construction, as well as civic involvement in community development. In Philadelphia he was president of a consulting architectural and planning firm specializing in space planning, location studies, building analyses and master planning for institutional clients including the Federal Reserve Bank and several medical schools and teaching hospitals. His design experience also includes churches, public schools, banks, health care facilities, retail, office and commercial centers as well as hundreds of custom residential projects throughout Carson City, the surrounding area and Lake Tahoe.

More recently Art has joined forces with Darrin Berger to form B.H.A. As managing partner Art will continue to participate in local community development and assist objectively in the growth of their new firm. Together, they share the vision of a practice that offers quality service and value of all projects regardless of size, location or challenges.
