A Guide to the Nevada Open Meeting Law

FYI

The Nevada Open Meeting Law (OML) was enacted in 1960 to ensure that the actions and deliberations of public bodies be conducted openly. This brochure provides a brief overview of the law, but is not intended to address all provisions of the OML, or all issues that arise under the OML. For additional information, see the full text of the OML set forth in chapter 241 of the Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS). For additional guidance on the OML, see the Nevada Open Meeting Law Manual published by the Office of the Attorney General, and the Open Meeting Law Compliance Checklist, as well as Open Meeting Law Opinions of the Office of the Attorney General.

When does the OML apply?

The OML governs meetings of public bodies. A public body is any administrative, advisory, executive, or legislative body of the state or local government which expends or disburses or is supported in whole or in part by tax revenue, or which advises or makes recommendations to any entity which expends or disburses or is supported in whole or in part by tax revenue, including any board, commission, committee, subcommittee, or other subsidiary.

Is a meeting going to occur?

The OML only applies to meetings of a quorum of the members of a public body. A quorum is a simple majority of the membership of a public body, or another proportion established by law. A meeting occurs when a quorum of the public body is present to deliberate toward a decision or take action on any matter over which the public body has supervision, control, jurisdiction, or advisory power.

Has proper notice been given of the meeting?

The OML requires that a written notice of the meeting be prepared which includes the time, place, and location of the meeting, a list of places where the notice was posted, a statement regarding assistance and accommodations for physically handicapped people, and an agenda of the meeting.

The notice must be posted at the principal office of the public body (or if there is no principal office, at the building in which the meeting is to be held), and posted at not less than three (4!) other separate, prominent places within the jurisdiction of the public body. Notice must be posted no later than 9 a.m. on the third working day prior to the meeting – do not count the day of the meeting.

Written notice must be mailed, at no charge, to those who have requested written notice, and delivered to the United States Postal Service no later than 9 a.m. of the third working day before the meeting. Remember, you must inform persons who have requested notice in the first notice sent to them that their request lapses after six months.

Does the agenda comply with the OML?

The OML requires that the agenda for the meeting consist of a clear and complete statement of the topics to be considered during the meeting.

The agenda must include a list describing the items on which action may be taken and clearly denoting that action may be taken on those items.

The agenda must also include a period devoted to public comment, and should include a statement that no action may be taken upon a matter raised under the public comment period unless the matter itself has been specifically included on an agenda as an action item.

Is agenda support material available?

The OML requires that at least one copy of the agenda, proposed ordinance or regulation which will be discussed at the meeting, and any other supporting material (except material confidential by law) be provided at no charge to any person who requests it. The material must be made available at a public place once the material has been distributed to members of the public body, and at the public meeting.

Was the public comment period conducted in accordance with the OML?

The OML requires that a period during the meeting be designated for public comment. The public comment period should not be restricted to speaking on non-agenda items unless the public is permitted to speak on agenda items as they are heard.

Reasonable rules and regulations which ensure orderly conduct of a public meeting may be adopted by a public body, and reasonable restrictions, including time limits, can be imposed on speaking. Any rule that limits or restricts public comment must be clearly articulated on the agenda. Remember, any practice or policy that discourages or results in preventing public comment, even if technically in compliance with the law, may violate the spirit and intent of the OML.

Exemptions and Exceptions from the OML?

Nevada law provides for some exemptions from the requirements of the OML, such as judicial proceedings, certain proceedings of state and local ethics commissions, and meetings of the legislature and legislative committees.

There are also certain exceptions to the OML which allow a public body to temporarily close its meeting to the public. The OML permits a public body to close its meeting to: consider a person's character, alleged misconduct, professional competence, or physical or mental health. Such a session, whether open or closed, cannot be held unless the subject of the meeting has been given written notice of the time and place of the meeting by certified mail at least 21 days prior to the meeting, or by personal service at least five days prior to the meeting, and cannot be held if the person is an elected member of a public body, or to discuss the appointment of any person to public office or as a member of a public body.

Always check the NRS to see if a particular proceeding is exempt or excepted from the OML.

Minutes and recordings under the OML?

The OML requires that written minutes be kept of each meeting of the public body, for both closed and open sessions. Written minutes must include: the date, time, and place of the meeting, the members of the public body who were present, the substance of all matters proposed, discussed or decided, the substance of oral or written remarks made by a member of the public if he so requests, and any other information which a member of the public body requests to be included.

Written minutes, and any audio or tape recordings of an open meeting must be available for public inspection within 30 working days after adjournment of the meeting. Minutes of public meetings must be retained by the public body for at least five years. Upon request, minutes of closed sessions must be provided to the person to which the closed session pertained within 30 working days of adjournment of the meeting. Minutes of closed sessions are generally not public records.

Violations of the OML?

The Office of the Attorney General is required to investigate and prosecute violations of the OML. The Office of the Attorney General, and any person denied a right conferred under the OML, may sue in District Court to void any action taken in violation of the OML within 60 days after the action was taken, or may sue to require compliance with the OML within 120 days after the action objected to was taken.

A member of a public body may be guilty of a misdemeanor if he willfully violates the OML.

NRS 241.020 Meetings to be open and public; limitations on closure of meetings; notice of meetings; copy of materials; exceptions.

1. Except as otherwise provided by specific statute, all meetings of public bodies must be open and public, and all persons must be permitted to attend any meeting of these public bodies. A meeting that is closed pursuant to a specific statute may only be closed to the extent specified in the statute allowing the meeting to be closed. All other portions of the meeting must be open and public, and the public body must comply with all other provisions of this chapter to the extent not specifically precluded by the specific statute. Public officers and employees responsible for these meetings shall make reasonable efforts to assist and accommodate persons with physical disabilities desiring to attend.

2. Except in an emergency, written notice of all meetings must be given at least 3 working days before the meeting. The notice must include:

(a) The time, place and location of the meeting.

(4) If: any portion of the meeting will be closed to consider the character, alleged misconduct or professional competence of a person, the name of the person whose character, alleged misconduct or professional competence will be considered.

(5) If: during any portion of the meeting, the public body will consider whether to take administrative action against a person, the name of the person against whom administrative action may be taken.

3. Minimum public notice is:

(a) Posting a copy of the notice at the principal office of the public body or, if there is no principal office, at the building in which the meeting is to be held, and at not less than three other separate, prominent places within the jurisdiction of the public body not later than 9 a.m. of the third working day before the meeting; and

(b) Providing a copy of the notice to any person who has requested notice of the meetings of the public body. A request for notice lapses 6 months after it is made. The public body shall inform the requester of this fact by enclosure with, notation upon or text included within the first notice sent. The notice must be:

(1) Delivered to the postal service used by the public body not later than 9 a.m. of the third working day before the meeting for transmittal to the requester by regular mail; or

4. If: a public body maintains a website on the Internet or its successor, the public body shall post notice of each of its meetings on its website unless the public body is unable to do so because of technical problems relating to the operation or maintenance of its website. Notice posted pursuant to this subsection is supplemental to and is not a substitute for the minimum public notice required pursuant to subsection 3. The inability of a public body to post notice of a meeting pursuant to this subsection as a result of technical problems with its website shall not be deemed to be a violation of the provisions of this chapter.

5. Upon any request, a public body shall provide, at no charge, at least one copy of:

(a) An agenda for a public meeting;

(b) A proposed ordinance or regulation which will be discussed at the public meeting; and

(2) Pertaining to the closed portion of such a meeting of the public body; or

(3) Declared confidential by law, unless otherwise agreed to by each person whose interest is being protected under the order of confidentiality.

• The public body shall make at least one copy of the documents described in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) available to the public at the meeting to which the documents pertain. As used in this subsection, "proprietary information" has the meaning ascribed to it in NRS 332.025.

6. A copy of supporting material required to be provided upon request pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection 5 must be:

(a) If the supporting material is provided to the members of the public body before the meeting, made available to the requester at the time the material is provided to the members of the public body; or

(b) If the supporting material is provided to the members of the public body at the meeting, made available at the meeting to the requester at the same time the material is provided to the members of the public body.

• If the requester has agreed to receive the information and material set forth in subsection 5 by electronic mail, the public body shall, if feasible, provide the information and material by electronic mail.

7. A public body may provide the public notice, information and material required by this section by electronic mail. If a public body makes such notice, information and material available by electronic mail, the public body shall inquire of a person who requests the notice, information or material if the person will accept receipt by electronic mail. The inability of a public body, as a result of technical problems with its electronic mail system, to provide a public notice, information or material required by this section to a person who has agreed to receive such notice, information or material by electronic mail shall not be deemed to be a violation of the provisions of this chapter.

8. As used in this section, "emergency" means an unforeseen circumstance which requires immediate action and includes, but is not limited to:

- (a) Disasters caused by fire, flood, earthquake or other natural causes; or

3. A public body may close a meeting pursuant to subsection 1 upon a motion which specifies:

(a) The nature of the business to be considered; and

(c) Prevent the exclusion of witnesses from a public or private meeting during the examination of another witness.

(d) Require that any meeting be closed to the public.

(e) Permit a closed meeting for the discussion of the appointment of any person to public office or as a member of a public body.

2. A witness who is testifying before a public body is absolutely privileged to publish defamatory matter as part of a public meeting, except that it is unlawful to misrepresent any fact knowingly when testifying before a public body.

(Added to NRS by 2005, 2242)

NRS 241.0355 Majority of all members of public body composed solely of elected officials required to take action by vote; abstention not affirmative vote; reduction of quorum.

1. A public body that is required to be composed of elected officials only may not take action by vote unless at least a majority of all the members of the public body vote in favor of the action. For purposes of this subsection, a public body may not count an abstention as a vote in favor of an action.

2. Theatrical fare part of Parks and Rec month events

Nevada Appeal Staff Report

Free theatrical events at the Carson City Community Center are among the options available during July's Parks and Recreation Month celebration.

In a news release, Parks and Recreation Department Director Roger Moellendorf highlighted the three indoor events as among the many free or discounted opportunities, a host of them outdoors, available to the public as part of local involvement in the national monthly celebration.

He said the trio of events are "The Major and the Gambler," a one-man show; "Fable," a production telling a surreal tale and presented by Le Cirque Vagabond; and "Once On This Island, Jr.," a free Youth Theater Carson City production preview of an event running Aug. 9-18 in the center's Bob Boldrick Theater. Tickets in August will cost $10 and $12.

"The Major and the Gambler" is billed as a one-man show and historical disquisition on creation of the Nevada Territory. It is set for 7:30 p.m. Friday at the theater.

It is the true story of archrivals Major William Ormsby and "Lucky" Bill. It will be presented by Carson City's Chris Bayer in the center's Sierra Room. Seating is first-come, first-served. Call 775-887-2242 for more information.

"Fable" will be presented at 2 p.m. July 20 in the Bob Boldrick Theater at the center, at 851 E. William St.

Tickets for the free event may be obtained at the Carson City Aquatics Center at 841 N. Roop St., just south of the Community Center. The release indicated the show boasts stunts, aerial acts, choreography and "cirque acts that will keep you on the edge of your seat."

The preview of "Once On This Island, Jr." is set for 6 p.m. July 26 in the Bob Boldrick Theater. The release said it is a poignant story with a catchy Caribbean score. Youth Theater Carson City, which is producing it, works in conjunction with the Parks and Recreation Department.

Corrections chief: Prison isn't ready for tours

By Geoff Dorman
gdorman@nevadaappeal.com

7-24-13

When one of the founders of the effort to turn Nevada State Prison into a museum said recently the group was hoping to start offering tours on Nevada Day, it took others among the organization's most knowledgeable leaders — not to mention state prison officials — completely by surprise.

Myron Carpenter, a retired Douglas High teacher and history aficionado, made the statement saying the NSP historic preservation group can start offering tours when it's ready. He said he thought it would be an excellent addition to the list of Nevada Day activities and events.

Deputy Director of Corrections Brian Connnett said that was news to him since there are a lot of things that have to be done before the public can visit the prison.

"The department has been working with the historical preservation society but we haven't heard that it's opening," Connnett said this week.

Connnett was joined by former prison director Glen Whorton, another of the non-profit group's founders, who said the story caused "a lot of consternation because a lot of complex work has to take place before that can happen."

Whorton credited Assemblyman Pete Livermore, D-Carson City, for introducing the bill during the 2013 Legislature enabling the Nevada State Prison Historic Preservation Society to begin working toward turning NSP into a museum and tourist attraction.

Whorton said that is the goal for the historic 150 year old prison on Fifth Street but that, "we're at the very beginning of this process."

"There are issues of liability, issues of condition, issues of support from the department of corrections, state of Nevada and our organization," he said.

Whorton, who worked for corrections 32 years before retiring as director, said some people in the group think the process is taking too long.

"Myron said he is concerned about how slow things are going," he said. "From my experience in government, this is not going slow. This is proceeding appropriately."

He also said no one is authorized to just go into the prison, not even the preservation group, because the license plate "tag plant" is still operating there using inmate labor and occasionally other inmates are doing yard and other maintenance work. He said the state still owns NSP and Corrections still has control of it.

He said it's time to get everybody together, all those involved, to start working out the details.

"We're talking about specific actions that have to take place and the most obvious of those is the vetting of volunteers," Whorton said.

He said that means setting policies and processes, doing background checks and providing training for those volunteers.

In addition, he said there are liability issues since the prison, some parts of which are more than 100 years old, is anything but Americans with Disabilities Act compliant. There are numerous dangers in just walking around and through the old prison.

There are financing issues, repairs to utilities and other issues that must be addressed before NSP opens for business as a museum as well.

Among them, before anyone begins offering tours, he said they also have to develop the educational programs to tell visitors about NSP, explain its history and what those visitors are seeing.

"We need to provide programming, have some meat to these things," he said.

Whorton said a meeting this week was planned to try focus the process so those things can all get done.

Nevada Day could be D-Day for tours of closed state prison

By Kurt Hildebrand
khildebrand@recorder.com

Proponents of turning the Nevada State Prison into a museum hope to start giving tours there by Nevada Day.

In late October 2011, retired Douglas High School teacher Myron Carpenter began an effort to preserve the prison after the inmates were moved out.

Eighteen months later, the effort by the Nevada State Prison Preservation Society has made some progress, but not as much as Carpenter would like.

Last week, Carpenter said he hoped to be able to begin tours for Nevada Day.

"I see there are a lot of things going on, and I figure this could be one more," he said.

"Something that's that old and has as much history as it does, should be preserved," Carpenter said. "It's the third-oldest prison west of the Mississippi. It was the first one to use the gas chamber."

When Carpenter taught at Douglas High, he would bring his classes to the prison for a tour.

"It's still haunting to me when I walk through the front door and then through the sally port, I can see the 600 faces of the prisoners," he said.

The organization has the keys to the prison and can start offering tours when it's ready.

Carpenter, the former president of the organization, said he has heard from other groups looking for museum space, including the Virginia & Truckee Railroad and the Warren Engine Co.

"Imagine three museums with five major highways relatively close," he said. "We can draw all kinds of tourists. It's just a question of getting people to come and help. We can make that place into a gold mine with that highway so close. I really believe that. I feel it will be a big boon for the state."

Carpenter pointed to the popularity of Alcatraz as an example of a successful prison museum.

"Why tear the thing down like they did the roundhouse?" he said.

On May 21, Gov. Brian Sandoval

signed a bill into law that marked a major step forward in preserving the decommissioned prison.

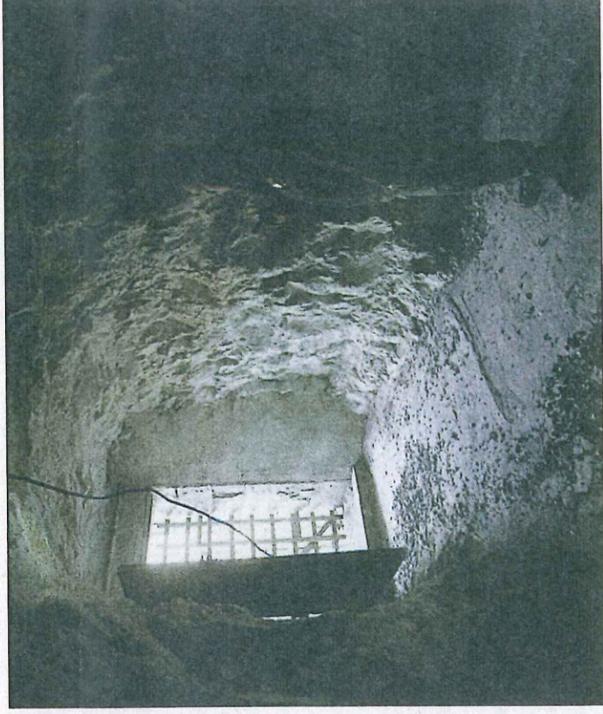

Assembly Bill 356 encourages the development of recommendations to preserve the prison for use as a historical, educational and scientific resource for Nevada.

The bill also encourages the Nevada State Prison Preservation Society to continue its involvement in developing recommendations to be brought back to the Legislature for consideration.

The prison operated continuously from 1862 — two years before statehood — until 2012.

Former Director of Corrections Glen Whorton said the group is most interested in the oldest part of the prison, which has 100-year-old buildings.

Supervisors favor Fuji Park ideas in two votes

Nevada Appeal
Staff Report

9-6-13

An interlocal agreement and redevelopment money to upgrade Fuji Park Fairgrounds paved the way Thursday for increased activity at the park.

The Carson City Board of Supervisors voted to approve an interlocal agreement between the city and the Carson City Convention & Visitors Bureau, a pact that has the city helping with some tasks for a small cut of lodging tax revenues and encourages cooperation regarding use of Fuji Park or other city facilities. That vote was unanimous.

Voting 4-1 with Supervisor John McKenna dissenting, the board in a separate action approved $122,851 in redevelopment funds for a Fuji Park Fairgrounds Plaza project to provide a shaded structure there.

The Redevelopment Authority Citizens Committee had recommended that amount for the project, as well as $39,273 to help out the Brewery Arts Center with its campus plan's initial move to close Minnesota Street from King Street to 2nd Street.

A two-thirds majority vote was needed on each project, however, and it failed as Supervisor Jim Shirk joined McKenna in opposing the financing for the BAC project.

In other action, the board voted for a couple of low bidders on projects and awarded them contracts.

The board determined that Reno Tahoe Construction, Inc. was low bidder on an East Fifth Street sanitary sewer rehabilitation project. The bid was $121,330.

The board determined that RaPiD Construction, Inc. was low bidder on a Kit Sierra, Mayflower and Bel Aire Way waterline replacement project.

The bid was $339,933.
