collaborating with Carson City and Washoe and Douglas Counties in hosting a spring CERT Olympics which will test the CERT's abilities and capabilities (skills-based) in a competitive manner. In conjunction with this event, there will be a refresher course for current CERT members, and then sometime in the spring, a new CERT Academy will be offered following the Carson City Citizen Academy. The Citizen Academy only talks about fire operations while the CERT Academy consists of specific skills-based training to assist responders during an emergency. Stacey Giomi mentioned that both the Carson Colony and the Stewart Colony could be invited to participate in the skills session portion of this academy for their CERTs. Stacey Belt said no date has yet been determined for the Academy, but it would probably be held in either April or May.

Stacey Belt introduced Taylor Radtke, the Director of the Carson City/Western Nevada Medical Reserve Corps, who reported on the activities of the MRC. Taylor said that they recently conducted a volunteer training orientation and have been participating in outreach clinics at the schools and in other community events (including the at-risk population and the general public). Since the beginning of September, they have had a total of seven volunteer opportunities, with 50 volunteers participating for over 492 hours (with a monetary value of $13,363.38). This included the Point of Distribution flu vaccination exercise held at the Public Works Department in October. Taylor mentioned that the MRC will be holding its annual kickoff meeting in February.
