Here we go again. More rules and regulations brough in by the Californian's that need to go back when they came from and live with all their rules and regulations. More and more freedom taken from us all, just little by little until there is none at all. Common sense has deteriorated over the years and this just needs to stop. I left California 25 years ago just to get away from this kind of crap. Any responsible person with half a brain knows enough to leash their dog when needed and clean up after them.
